One thing I find a bit counter-intuitive about :nth-child is that it uses all of the siblings when determining which elements to style, but will only style those that match the selector passed to it. For example, if I have a page of text with p tags, a h1 tag and some h2 tags and, for some strange reason, I want to alternate the colours of the

I don't think I'm going out on a limb by saying that air travel can be stressful. Crowded flights rarely bring out the best in people, and that's why common courtesy is so important. If you've ever been on a plane where a parent blatantly disregards that courtesy and lets her little black kid cry his lungs out in the seat next to you, then you've probably been pretty aggravated, much
