written by Dario Maestriperi. A review of Human Diversity: The Biology of Gender, Race, and Class by Charles Murray, Twelve (January 28th, 2020), 528 pages. Charles Murray believes in the values of Enlightenment: science and knowledge, truth and progress. Like the fictional character Lodovico Settembrini—a pro-Enlightenment Italian humanist in Thomas Mann’s 1924 novel The Magic Mountain—Murray believes that science provides the best method available to produce objective knowledge

Not simply a literature review, Human Diversity is a compendium of evidence suggesting that the biological sciences, to wit, genomics and neuroscience, are in the process of overturning social science dogmas through the sheer veracity of their many conclusions that increasingly run counter to prevailing liberal orthodoxies. Charles Murray has never struck me as an impudent firebrand and this book does nothing to change my mind.

Charles Murray Returns, Nodding to Caution but Still

Human Diversity: The Biology of Gender, Race, and Class is a 2020 non-fiction book written by the American political scientist Charles Murray. In the book, Murray argues that genetics, biology, and neuroscience are in the process of overthrowing the orthodoxy within the social sciences — that race is a social construct, gender is a social construct, and class is a function of privilege.
