The Enemy in the Mirror

In the fall of 2005, surgeons in France removed part of the face from a cadaver and grafted it onto the head of a 38-year-old woman who had been grossly disfigured when a dog dug part of her face off. And although modern culture is accustomed to pushing medicine and the human body beyond all limits, the world's first partial face transplant caused a stir that still reverberates globally today. This book begins with the story of Isabelle Dinoire, the recipient of that first face transplant, her surgery and her battles with tissue rejection, but its scope widens with a look at how surgical teams including three U.S. transplant teams are in a global race to perform the first full face transplant, and at how medical history has led up to this point - with prior successful transplants ranging from body parts as simple as cornea to those as neurologically complicated as the heart, a hand, and a penis. The most novel among them - the face transplant - however, conjures up particular and expansive psychological issues. Authors Bluhm and Clendenin show us how transplant recipients struggle with functional issues including a lifetime of anti-rejection drugs, but even more challenging in the case of a face transplant is the psychological effect on identity. Who are you, if suddenly your face - or a significant portion of it - is not what you were born with?

Sigmund Freud was an Austrian-born neurologist and psychiatrist and the father of modern psychoanalysis. Freud's theory of dream analysis essentially held that the root of all dreams was wish fulfillment. In order to discover the meaning in one's dreams, it was necessary for the psychoanalyst to guide the patient through free association, gradually eliciting a storyline, which could then be professionally analyzed. This volume introduces Freud's theories on the unconscious mind and first discusses what he would later call the Oedipus complex.

The I Ching is the oldest work of literature and while it has been used for centuries as an oracle, it is also a profound work of ancient Chinese philosophy. The Taoist philosophers observed nature to be a teacher and this compilation of the I Ching is especially rich in examining how nature can teach us about the human journey. By examining all possible ancient and modern interpretations The Essential I Ching offers the most comprehensive I Ching translation. All interpretations include quotes from the ancient masters of Chinese philosophy as well as being based on the power of nature which originally inspired the Book of Changes. Each line interpretation refers to the hexagram that would have been created by the line change for added insight. Additionally, each hexagram includes the Hu Gua (secondary influence) the Zong Gua (opposite influence) and even a quick reference to what the hexagram means when received as the changing hexagram. There is no other book on the I Ching that can compare to the research that has gone into preparing this text and it is interpreted in a way that is modern and relevant to today.

Nostradamus -- Who was this man really? Should we not ask ourselves from where he drew such knowledge, a knowledge of events hundreds of years before they took, are taking and will take place? Is it possible that he was privileged and, perhaps chosen to provide mankind with the knowledge of what to expect? Could it be, that the pattern of events is pre-determined by Divine Power, shaping the destiny not only of the world but of all human beings? Or do we, rather decide our own future and create our own destiny? This is a book which touches many aspects of life. The reader will be introduced to Dreams with a prophetic meaning, in discovering the 'Secrets of Sleep' and 'Why do we sleep?' When following this new approach, intuitive channels open, which leading us to the explanation of the Soul and Spirit, that lie within us all so vital for our overall wellbeing. This is an informative, true valuable source for all who search for a greater understanding in 'what is it, that makes us human'?

House as a Mirror of Self presents an unprecedented examination of our relationship to where we live, interwoven with compelling personal stories of the search for a place for the soul. Marcus takes us on a reverie of the special places of childhood--the forts we made and secret hiding places we had--to growing up and expressing ourselves in the homes of adulthood. She explores how the self-image is reflected in our homes/ power struggles in making a home together with a partner/ territory, control, and privacy at home/ self-image and location/ disruptions in the bonding with home/ and beyond the "house as ego" to the call of the soul. As our culture is swept up in home improvement to the extent of having an entire TV network devoted to it, this book is essential for understanding why the surroundings that we call home make us feel the way we do. With this information we can embark on home improvement that truly makes room for our soul.

Someone Else's Face in the Mirror

When you lose your place in the world, you need only return to stillness. Through stillness, you return to the Way. These are the words from the Tao te Ching, which presents timeless wisdom about following the way of nature. Tao te Ching, the Poetry of Nature is a beautiful interpretation that captures its original poetic style, and is a compilation drawn from the many ancient Chinese sages who studied it. As a tool for meditation, its simplicity has made it the most widely read text about Taoism: "While carrying on with life in your head, can you embrace its mystery and not let go?" Celebrating what is timeless and valuable about existence, the second section of this book includes a collection of ancient Taoist poetry.
